C.A.K.E – The promotion of cultural knowledge, creativity and intercultural understanding through education

Art and Culture – Key Elements of Education

In matters of education, it is becoming very clear that society is changing:

- We don't need people who think in straight lines;
- We need people who can see the wider picture;
- We need people who can make connections, unexpected connections.

This is the area in which the arts are supreme, in which art and education can give more, in every respect, than any other discipline.”

Teachers play a decisive role in awakening and encouraging creative potential

Knowledge and creativity are the new economic factors. It is not raw materials and machines capital and land by themselves, analysts say, that will be the driving forces of our economy in the future.

The deciding factor in the success of countries and regions will be the competition for creative and innovative minds.
